My relatives and my family usually go to Sinharaja forest in our holidays. As we have visited Sinharaja several times on the main trail, we decided to take a different path, off the main trail. Everything in the forest seemed to be different in that area. The trees were in deeper shade of green. The birds chirped in different tones. Vines covered almost every inch of the ground.

While our parents were unpacking the bags in the tents, my self and two of my cousins just walked through the paths. We were advised no to go to the deep forest. When it became dark, we started to return to our tents. But none of the scenes around appeared familiar and we understood that we lost in the forest. It was so unexpected. It gave all a feeling of excitement that can't be described. My two cousins looked frightened. Surprisingly, I was not much excited. I wanted to go back to the place where we started but it seemed impossible as there were many paths. We were helpless. We were struggling in our thoughts. We thought we were deserted. No body uttered a single word. We decided to go along the ways aimlessly and walked along the left path as much as we could. Yet we felt that is was not the correct way to come out as it was full of largely grown tall trees.

We turned back finding every other possible ways to come out of the place. We were wondering what to do. we felt tired, thirsty and exhausted. We didn't have anything to drink. All of a sudden we saw an array of smoke coming at a distance. We walked forwards few yards having a small hope. We were eager to see some one there. We shouted loudly. At once we heard an echoing sound from a nearby place. It gave a real sense of protection. We hurriedly stepped forward.

There , we saw our parents running towards us. We hugged each other with happy tears.
